Applicant's election of the third species of Figure 12, claims 4-8, without traverse is acknowledged. Claims 1-3 are withdrawn as being directed to a non-elected species.

The Examiner is requesting applicant and Denso patent personnel to provide all Denso assigned prior art patents & publications that have a foot opening in a sidewall of the casing, which is opened and closed by a door structure that rotates parallel to the sidewall. This is highly relevant prior art to the embodiment of Figure 12, and none of the prior art provided by applicant, thus far, shows this feature.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4, 5, 7, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the combined teachings of JP 2001-113931 and any one of JP 4-50022, JP 2-6212, JP 10-100636, assigned to Denso, JP 5-238241, JP 11-180128, assigned to Denso or USP 6,116511.

Calsonic's JP 2001-113931 shows all of the claims features except the aspirator for the interior temperature sensor. To have connected a conventional aspirator to the chamber downstream of the heat exchanger through either the front wall or sidewall of the casing of JP'931 would have been obvious in view of any one of the six secondary teachings of locating the aspirator port at one of these two locations to assure that the aspirator will function continuously (regardless of air-mix or mode door position) thereby properly measuring temperature at all times.

Art Unit: 3753

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the prior art as applied to claim 4 above, and further in view of JP 10-29419.

To have replaced damper Df of Calsonic '931 with a rotary type such as taught by JP '419 at 14, 19 would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to advantageously reduce the part count.
